Fashion Clothes Are Here

"You seem to regard your 'Fashion Clothes' as something extraordinary," said a friend on the car the other day to our advertising man. "Well, we should say so. You've heard of the King of Spain and how he lies awake nights originating new schemes for increasing his reputation as the world's best dressed man. You've heard how he 'pulls down' all the prizes for smart dressing in Paris, London and Vienna. 'Listen—the king need have 'nothing on you,' unless you choose to let him. Fashion Clothes are entirely original and fascinating in design. They have the merry swing, the 'hip, hip, hurrah' and the bracing, breezy qualities you need. Tomorrow would be a good time for you to come in and try on a few models, just for satisfaction's sake."

MANIAC BLOWS UP HOME AND FAMILY

Kills Himself, One Daughter and Severely Wounds Two Others.

WIFE MIRACULOUSLY ESCAPES WITH LIFE

Crazed Indiana Stone Mason Apparently Had Planned to Destroy Entire Family.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., September 12.—Carefully selecting the places where he believed the most damage would be done, Mack Hurst, fifty years old, a stone-mason, early today blew up his home here with dynamite, killing himself and his seventeen-year-old daughter, Maude, and injuring two other children and stunning his wife. The injured: Fannie Hurst, thirteen, one leg broken and body lacerated. Elizabeth Hurst, six, severely cut and bruised. Mrs. Rena Hurst, forty-nine, stunned by explosion. Hurst had been separated from his wife for six weeks, and yesterday she refused to take him back. It is believed that he then, in a fit of insanity, determined to wipe out the entire family, consisting of himself, his wife and three children. The dead girl met the fate intended for her mother, and the fact that they had changed beds for the night cost the daughter her life. Hurst, after stealthily, in the darkness, planting a stick of dynamite under each of the three beds in the room, went to the bed which he had formerly occupied with his wife, but which last night contained the three daughters, Maude, Fannie and Elizabeth. Fannie spoke to her father. "Lie still," Hurst replied. "We will all die together."

Whole City Aroused.

Before the girl could make a move the explosion rent the house and aroused the entire city. The police and fire department rushed to the scene, sent the two injured girls to the hospital and cleared away the debris. Four sticks of dynamite, unexploded, were found in the ruins, and the fact that only one, and that one attached to Hurst's body, had exploded accounted for the escape of the other members of the family. The bodies of Hurst and his daughter were found in a mass of debris at the rear of the home. The other two daughters were in another part of the ruins. Both were unconscious and it was some time before they were revived. Neither was able to tell anything of this occurrence.

House Wrecked by Explosion.

The shock of the explosion wrecked the house and was felt in the whole immediate neighborhood. Every pane of glass for a block around was broken and other minor damage done homes in the immediate vicinity. Hurst, who had not been working for some time, had been acting strangely of late and an inquisitorial body had declared him insane. It was not thought, however, that his insanity was of a violent kind and no preparations for his confinement had been made. It is supposed that he suddenly became worse and while in a frenzy committed the act.

DR. GREENE'S FAME WON AS BOTANIST

His Loss Would Be Serious One to the Smithsonian Institution.

To the Editor of The Star: The mention of Dr. Edward Lee Greene in connection with the chair of botany at Notre Dame University brings into the limelight one of the most interesting citizens of the National Capital. Dr. Greene has been with us so long and has become so identified with the scientific work of the Smithsonian Institution that, should he leave here, he would be missed by a host of friends who have learned to appreciate his kindly presence and to admire his great erudition. This distinguished scholar has given a lifetime to the pursuit of nature's plant secrets, not in the study of books alone, but in laborious field work and exploration, to which he devoted a portion of every year for more than a quarter of a century in the region between the Rocky mountains and the Pacific coast, and it is probable that he excels all other botanists in real practical knowledge of plant life in North America. The volume of his work is prodigious, the species described by him numbering more than 5,000. The mere list of the journals to which he is a contributor would be a catalogue of the history of scientific periodical literature. In addition to his scientific and linguistic attainments Dr. Greene is a fine theorist. He is the ideal teacher who not only knows his subject, but can make it a living reality to his pupils. Among his many valuable works are "Pitonia," a series of botanical papers in five volumes; "Leaves of Botanical Observation," a series of papers on "Flora Franciscana," "Manual of the Botany of the Region of San Francisco Bay" and "Landmarks of Botanical History."

A Mine for Students.

The last-named, published by the Smithsonian Institution in 1909, is truly a mine of wealth for the economic or industrial botanist, as well as for the student of scientific botany. Dr. Greene has amassed a library of rare and valuable botanical works. It is to be hoped, for the sake of posterity, that this unique collection will never be scattered, but will eventually find its home in a national botanical library to which every student and devoted scholar may have access. Dr. Greene comes of old Puritan stock. He was born at Hopkinton, R. I., August 20, 1843, and removed in early life to Wisconsin. He attended school in his native state, continued his studies in Wisconsin, and graduated in 1866 from Jarvis College, Denver. He taught in various institutions from that time until 1870, when he entered the ministry of the Episcopal Church, of which he was a clergyman until 1884.

Became Roman Catholic.

At this time he became a Roman Catholic. Those who would be interested in the why and wherefore of his "going over to Rome" may find the story told in a characteristic and charming autobiographical sketch in Miss Curtis' book, "Roads to Rome in America." It was a momentous change in his life, but one which he has never regretted. He was professor of botany in the University of California for ten years, and came to Washington in 1885 to fill the chair of botany in the Catholic Uni-

M'REYNOLDS TO DELAY ANSWER ON PHONE CASE

Will Give Hearing on Suggested Absorption of Illinois Tunnell Company.

Attorney General McReynolds and G. Carroll Todd, his assistant, will give a hearing early next week to several Chicago persons interested in the suggested absorption of the Illinois Tunnel Company by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company before replying to the inquiry of the Chicago city council as to whether this consolidation would be a violation of the Sherman law. The Attorney General had practically decided to inform the council that he could not render an opinion on the question because under the law his legal views are expressed only to the President and cabinet. His reply will now be delayed until after the hearing requested by those interested.

More Complaints Received.

More complaints from independent telephone interests that the big company is crushing competition have been received recently by the Attorney General, who has indicated that he must soon decide whether the Department of Justice would avail the conclusion of the pending telephone inquiry by the interstate commerce commission or undertake an investigation with the purpose of bringing a civil suit if the facts warrant such action. The interstate commerce commission's inquiry, undertaken at the request of former Attorney General Wickersham, probably will require two or three years. General McReynolds will feel justified in refraining from moving under the Sherman law in the meantime. The commission's investigation is designed to develop a governmental policy, involving a decision ultimately whether the telephone should be owned and operated by the government, or competition enforced under the Sherman law, or the situation regulated by commission, as railroads are.

Question Extremely Difficult.

Complaints to the Department of Justice allege that the Bell company acquires control of local telephone companies and then refuses to connect its long-distance lines with competitors. The federal government can intervene only on long-distance business crossing state lines. The question is extremely difficult, because the Sherman law has never been applied to the telephone in a court decision, and the intricate questions of law involved are expected to be settled by the suit brought by Attorney General McReynolds against the Bell company and its subsidiaries on the Pacific coast.

Temporary Alimony Denied.

Justice Stafford today denied the application of Otella Thorne Taylor for temporary alimony during the pendency of a suit for maintenance brought by her against her husband, Samuel G. Taylor, a meat dealer. Mr. Taylor denied the charge made by his wife and says he has always contributed to her support. Attorney W. P. Plumley represented the husband.

Ladies! Darken Your Gray Hair

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and abundant.
